

TRIED

Twice to End Her Life

Crown Princess Had a Pistol Concealed

AND WHEN ALONE SHE FIRED TWO BULLETS.

BUT BOTH WENT WIDE OF MARK

Before Princess Could Repeat it the Attendants at the Sanitarium Disarmed Her.

Vienna, Feb. 10.—Die Zeit this morning reports that Crown Princess Louise of Saxony attempted suicide. The Princess had a revolver concealed beneath her dress and when she found herself alone at the sanitarium where she is stopping, she fired two shots at herself. Both shots went wide of their mark. Before she could repeat it, attendants at the sanitarium disarmed her.

Consul Smith Dead.

Washington, Feb. 10.—Hubbard T. Smith, vice consul for the United States at Cairo, Egypt, is dead of Bright's disease. He was a native of Indiana and wrote some noted songs, among which were "Listen to My Tale of Woe," and "Swinging in the Grapevine Swing."

GAMBLING KINGS

Celebrated the Opening of Wheeling W. Va., to Their Games, With a Banquet.

Wheeling, Feb. 10.—Twenty-five gambling kings of Wheeling sat down to a sumptuous banquet last evening, in celebration of the opening of all the gambling resorts in the city. In a room underneath the banquet hall, other gamblers indulging in every conceivable game of chance. It was one of the most unique banquets on record. Gambling generally, has been suppressed here for some time, but it re-opened last night with no apparent opposition.

PANAMA CANAL

The Treaty Will be Ratified Before Expiration of United States' Option on March 4.

Washington, Feb. 10.—It has been decided by the Senate steering committee that the Panama Canal treaty shall be taken up in advance of all other executive business. This decision assures its ratification at this session, and before expiration, on March 4, of the option, now held by the United States to purchase the property of the French company for $10,000,000. The canal will be assured.

Sends for Giron.

London, Feb. 10.—An agency dispatch from Brussels asserts that M. Giron is returning to Geneva in response to an urgent appeal from the former Crown Princess of Saxony.

The princess having failed to obtain permission to see her sick child, considers it futile, according to the dispatch, to make any further concessions to the Saxon court.

CONFERENCE REPORT

On Department of Commerce Bill Adopted Today by Overwhelming Majority.

Washington, Feb. 10.—The House by a vote of 251 to 10, adopted the conference report on the bill creating a department of commerce and labor. Opposition to the bill was centered around the Nelson amendment, which creates a Bureau of Corporations in the new department, and aims to carry into effect the publicity feature of the anti-trust legislation.

PROTEST

Of Standard Oil Company as to a Clause in the Littlefield Anti-Trust Bill.

Washington, Feb. 10.—It is now stated that the only basis for the story that John D. Rockefeller had sent telegrams to Senators regarding the anti-trust bill arose from protests of the Standard Oil officials as to a clause of the Littlefield bill which would require the Standard Oil company to make public its foreign business. This the Standard says, would give Russian rivals undue advantage.

SMALLPOX

Statistics Showing the Increase and Progress of the Present Epidemic in Ohio.

Columbus, O., Feb. 10.—Secretary C. O. Probst, of the State Board of Health, today gave out a statement, showing the progress of the present smallpox epidemic in Ohio. It began in April, 1898, and to the end of that year there were 669 cases, and 5 deaths; in state 1899, 1756 cases, 32 deaths; 1900, 3229 cases, 44 deaths; 1901, 4880 cases, 78 deaths; 1902, 5587 cases and 342 deaths. The disease took on a malignant form in 1902 and during January, 1903, there were 849 cases and 37 deaths as against 630 cases and 12 deaths in January, 1902.

Will Root Retire.

Washington, Feb. 10.—The story is revived here today that Secretary Root will soon retire from the cabinet to be replaced by Gov. Taft of the Philippines.

DR. MYNTER

FAMOUS SURGEON TO PRESIDENT MCKINLEY IS DEAD.

Heart Disease is Given as the Cause. Prominent Woman Physician Suicides at Chicago.

Buffalo, Feb. 10.—Dr. Herman Mynter, one of the country's most noted surgeons, whose name was heralded around the world for his connection with President McKinley's case, died at his home No. 566 Delaware avenue in this city, last night of heart disease.

Chicago, Feb. 11.—Dr. Gertrude H. Wentworth, aged 65, one of the foremost women physicians in the west, committed suicide this morning by swallowing two ounces of chloroform. Despondency caused by the absence of her two sons, who have gone to Port Arthur, Texas, to reside, and fear of physical breakdown, are given as the reasons for her act.

CARBOLIC ACID

USED SUB-CUTANEOUSLY IN THE TREATMENT OF TETANUS.

Remarkable Results Have Thus Far Attended Experiment of a St. Louis Physician.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 10.—By the injection of carbolic acid into the veins of a dying man, a process new to medical science in the United States, Dr. Neillert, of this city has prolonged for 48 hours the life of Wm. Wanda, a fireman, with a severe case of lockjaw. The method employed is not unlike that of the injection of formalin. Dr. Neillert, when the man was brought to the hospital, realizing that by ordinary methods of treatment his death was only a few hours distant, secured the permission of the patient and his relatives for the experiment, which consisted of injecting ten drops of a 10 per cent solution every three hours. Thus far it has proved successful, although it is not known whether it will sustain the patient sufficiently to carry him on to recovery.

AGAIN.

Are the Powers Checkmated

Bowen Refuses to Sign the Protocol

ITALY'S DRAFT TOO MEETS WITH DISAPPROVAL

CREDITORS ARE STILL INSISTING

On Preferentials Before the Case Goes to The Hague—Blockade Causes Suffering.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 10.—Minister Bowen has again checkmated the Allied Powers in his refusal to sign a protocol drawn up by the Kaiser's Envoy, which in effect would give Germany payment for all claims prior to the reference of the points in dispute to The Hague Tribunal. While this will entail added delay it will not break off further negotiations.

Though Mr. Bowen and the other negotiators are closely guarding the provisions of the several protocols, the demands which are known to exist in the German and Italian agreement as they are at present drafted and to which Mr. Bowen can not agree, concern an increased payment by Venezuela prior to the handing down of The Hague's decision regarding the allies' contention for preferential consideration in the settlement of their claims.

It is reported that Germany asks that she receive, in addition to the $27,500 cash that Mr. Bowen has agreed to pay, a certain percentage of the customs receipts until the remainder of the $340,000 demanded in the original ultimatum, addressed by Germany to President Castro last autumn is paid.

Italy is insisting on a similar demand, though the amounts asked for in her ultimatum was over $500,000. Both Germany and Italy suggest that this money be paid in monthly installments out of the customs duties, but even under this arrangement it would require eight months for the payment of the entire sum.

It is the principle, however, to which Mr. Bowen so strenuously objects, and to which, he has informed the German and Italian Envoys he cannot subscribe. Until their protocols are relieved of these objectionable demands Mr. Bowen says that they must remain unsigned. He contends that Germany and Italy are insisting on preferential treatment, a question which they agree in their protocols shall go to the Hague.

It is the firm opinion of the Italian Ambassador and the German Minister that the insertion in their protocols of these demands is the result of a serious misunderstanding on the part of their Foreign Offices of certain phases of the negotiations which were supposed to be settled. They are using every effort to have this misunderstanding cleared up and have informed Mr. Bowen that they hope to submit their conventions to him in a few days.

Mr. Bowen has made it plain to the allies' representatives that he is willing to consider any reasonable request they may advance, but will not yield to the extent of signing the present German and Italian protocols. Published reports that Germany included in her protocol a demand for an apology from President Castro or his resignation is news to Mr. Bowen, and of course would not be considered.

WITHOUT BREAD.

Caracas, Venezuela, Feb. 10.—The effects of the blockade are being keenly felt at the foreign legations here. The legations are without any bread.

W. W. Russell, the United States Charge d'Affaires, acts as the provider for the legations. The Spanish and Dutch Legations daily receive provisions from him.

M. Goffart, the Belgian Charge, requested the Commander of the British cruiser Tribune to send him a bag of flour. His request was refused, but the United States gunboat Marietta's commander was better hearted and sent him a bag. It is now worth 15 cents a pound.

CASTRO STILL ON DECK.
Caracas, Feb. 10.—A force of 2,000 men under Minister of War General Ferrer left Caracas for Higuerote. The object is to attack 1,500 revolutionists under General Monagas. Even ardent revolutionists seem to recognize that President Castro is master of the situation. The Government troops captured the town of Guatire at noon and are marching on Rio Chico.

Oil Stock Bought.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 10.—It is officially announced that the Standard Oil Company has purchased a large portion of the stock of the People's Natural gas company of Pittsburg, on a basis of about $200 a share. The capitalization of the People's company was $1,000,000 and the Standard is said to have bought 20,000 shares.

TEST

Of Printing a Newspaper on Shipboard Proves a Success.

London, Feb. 10.—The first test of Marconi's idea of conducting a newspaper aboard ocean liners has proved a success. The Atlantic transport liner Minneapolis, which arrived at Tilbury this morning from New York, reports she received Marconigrams giving the news of the world throughout the voyage. Passengers of the liner pronounce the scheme a brilliant success.

ATTEMPT

TO PROVE THAT GHOUL CANTRELL IS INSANE.

This Morning Taken Up With Expert Testimony in Grave Robbery Case at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 10.—The trial of Dr. Joseph Alexander on a grave robbing charge continued today. All the morning was consumed in bearing expert testimony as to the soundness of ghoul Cantrell's mind. In every case the doctors who testified that Cantrell was insane were shown to have at one time been connected with the Central College which is involved in the grave robbery scandal. It is believed that the grave robbing gang to be tried after Alexander's trial is finished may escape punishment because of Cantrell's alleged insanity. Attorneys who have carefully studied the evidence submitted in the Alexander trial regarding the mental condition of Cantrell say the negro can be set at liberty or confined in an insane asylum if Alexander is acquitted.

BACHELORS

TO BE TAXED IN THE STATE OF ILLINOIS

If the Chicago Teachers' Federation Bill Becomes a Law—The Number is 600,000.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—The Chicago Teachers' Federation, having rounded up the tax dollars and carried on crusades successfully in other directions, now propose to have the six hundred thousand bachelors in Illinois taxed, the revenue to be devoted to the teachers pension fund. A bill to effect this will be introduced in the legislature soon.

"Bachelors' tax bills introduced in the New York and Kansas legislatures this winter are partly responsible for this proposed action on the part of the Chicago teachers. The last census shows that there are 600,000 unmarried men in Illinois and 600,000 unmarried women. While the fixed amount of the tax has not been mentioned, it is not likely to exceed $25 per annum.

FAMINE

Causes Terrible Suffering

Dalmatia Is Sorely Afflicted.

TYPHUS FEVER EPIDEMIC ADDS TO THE HORROR.

THOUSANDS ARE DYING DAILY.

Medical Aid is Sadly Deficient and Slavs All Over the World Are Asked for Aid.

Vienna, Feb. 10.—Dalmatia is suffering from famine and thousands of the inhabitants are daily dying from starvation. To add to the horror of the situation typhus fever has broken out and many who survive starvation are falling victims to the disease. Medical aid is sadly deficient, immense areas being without a single doctor. The newspaper Marodni Listy, today appeals to Slavs in all countries to come to the aid of their suffering countrymen.

SOUTH ANGRY

Boycott Social Affairs at White House. Root's Speech Subject of Attack in House.

Washington, Feb. 10.—Sec. Root's speech before the Union League club of New York regarding the race question is still the main topic of discussion among Southerners in Washington.

Southern senators and members would like to know what President Roosevelt and his cabinet intend to do. Because of the presence of negroes at the White House at the last two receptions, many southern senators and representatives will never attend another. Several negroes have been invited to the army and navy reception at the White House on February 12. During the remaining days of this Congress Secretary Root's speech will be the subject of speeches in the house by southern members.

JEALOUSY

CAUSED A BLOODY TRAGEDY IN ALABAMA

Returning from a Theatre With a Young Woman, Wright Was Fatally Shot.

Birmingham, Ala., Feb. 10.—John Smith and A. T. Wright, well known young men were both in love with Miss Gussie Gardner, who boarded at the same house with them and intense jealousy arose. Last night the girl went to the theatre with Smith, returning after midnight. Wright heard them talking in the hall of the boarding house and rushed out of his room with a pistol in his hand. Smith jerked a revolver from his own pocket and shot Wright three times, inflicting mortal wounds. Wright fell into the girl's arms, declaring his love for her with his last breath. Smith surrendered, claiming self defense.

SPENT MILLIONS

And is Now Dying in the Poor Ward of a San Francisco Hospital.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 10.—Gen. Carlos Ezeta, deposed president of Salvador who spent $7,000,000 in eight years, is dying in the poor ward of a Mazatlan Hospital. He was commander of the army at 37, president at 38, and was out-thrown at 40.

FIRST LOBBY

Ever Organize by United Mine Workers, Appointed by President John Mitchell.

Indianapolis, Feb. 10.—W. H. Haskins, President of the Ohio District, and T. L. Nichols, President of Anthracite District No. 1, of Pennsylvania, have been appointed by President John Mitchell, of the United Mine Workers to go to Washington at once to conduct the first lobby that the organization has ever organized and delegated. They will try to cause the enactment of the Hoar-Grosvenor anti-trust conspiracy bill.

AUTHOR

Of the Rockefeller Anti-Trust Sensation is President Roosevelt—Washington Stirred.

Washington, Feb. 10.—The publication of the attempt of John D. Rockefeller to prevent anti-trust legislation by Congress continues to be the sensation in Washington. The six senators that are said to be the ones who received the Rockefeller telegram requesting anti-trust legislation to be stopped, are Aldrich, Hale, Kean, Spooner, Hanna and Dewey. They all deny receiving the telegram and Rockefeller's friends deny that he sent out anything of the kind. But the significant fact about the whole affair is that President Roosevelt himself is the authority for the story. It was President Roosevelt who gave the information to the representative of the Associated Press that has created this sensation and stirred up Washington as it has not been done for a decade.

COTS

AND COMMISSARY DEPARTMENTS ARE PUT IN

The Fifteen Sky Scrapers Involved in Janitors and Elevator Men's Strike in Chicago.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—Cots and Commissary Departments have been put in the fifteen sky-scrapers, against which janitors, elevator men and teamsters are striking. Coal supplies are exhausted, and at most of them oil and gas stoves are being used to heat the few offices that are still occupied. An appeal has been made by the employees association, to the police for greater protection. Officers have been requested to accompany non-union teamsters, who have agreed to try to get coal to the buildings. All non-union men employed in the buildings are under constant guard. This morning 100 policemen were stationed at the buildings and another 100 held in readiness at squad rooms.

PROPERTY

TO THE VALUE OF $50,000 IS TO BE TAXED.

John D. Rockefeller Jr. Says This is More Than His Personal Property is Worth.

New York, Feb. 10.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., supposed to be about the richest young man in America, owes $400,000 and has only $30,000 worth of personal property, according to the statement filed yesterday with the department of taxes and assessments. Mr. Rockefeller was assessed at $400,000 but the tax commissioners have accepted his offer to pay on $50,000. It was learned at the tax office that Mr. Rockefeller called there and stated that he had $400,000 in debts and that his personal property above his debts was worth only $30,000, but he was willing to pay taxes on an assessment of $50,000. The commissioners accepted Mr. Rockefeller's figures.

Linis Herkimer, a prominent Napoleon business man, is missing, and several attachments were issued Monday against his business.

BAER

Has Tilt With a Lawyer

Who Made Argument for the Miners

CHARGED WITH DENYING FALSE STORY AT ELEVENTH HOUR.

FOR THE COMING FIVE DAYS

The Strike Commission Will Listen to Arguments in the Great Coal Strike Hearing.

Philadelphia, Feb. 10.—Arguments for and against the demands of the union anthracite mine workers, which will continue before the coal strike commission for the next five days are now on. D. J. McCarthy who made the opening argument for the miners was followed by former Congressman Brumm of Minersville, who made a general argument, and Henry D. Lloyd of Chicago, who confined his attention to the recognition of the union and yearly trade agreements.

Mr. Lloyd said: "The miners want more than the mere recognition of the union. They want an agreement for the negotiation of contracts and a settlement of grievances with provision for arbitration, if necessary." Lloyd was followed by former Congressman Charles M. Brumm, who charged that the coal companies were responsible for the presence of the large foreign population in the coal regions, and said:

"They can't bring the Hottentots here because it is too cold; they can't bring the Eskimo here because it is too warm, and they can't get the Chinese because the law will not let him in."

Brumm was directing many of his remarks at President Baer, who was sitting close to him. The Reading's president gave him close attention and when Brumm in an oratorical flight, said that Baer denied at the eleventh hour that he had ever said 21 murders were committed in the coal regions, that he did not deny it until the statement was permitted to go over the country and receive full effect, Baer jumped up and exclaimed:

"Wasn't it a lie? Did I ever say it?" The suddenness of the interruption evidently did not disturb Brumm, who replied:

"One moment; I will answer that." Baer was not satisfied and he said with great earnestness, "You said I did not deny it until the eleventh hour. What do you mean?"

"I said you did not deny it until recently," to which Baer replied, "Oh."

"What is it you wish to make out—that I did say it?" persisted Baer.

Brumm answered, "No; I said that you did not say it."

"That's different," remarked Baer as Chairman Gray rapped for order and requested Brumm to proceed with his argument.

Brumm, however, took a parting shot and retorted to Baer's remarks: denying at the time what appeared in denial at the time what appeared in the newspapers."

Philadelphia, Feb. 10.—Before the strike commission this morning Lawyer Lenehan for the operators, roasted the United Mine Workers: he said and as aliens by them, and on what ground may it please this commission? Whenever vowed allegiance to this organization. We never owed it fealty. We repudiate its doctrines, we disclaimed its principles and we condemn its practice. How then have we been guilty of any act of treachery to them?"

Mail Steamer Stranded.

New York, Feb. 11.—Word was received here that Madiana which started for a cruise from here with Americans aboard, bent on visiting the West Indies, was stranded off Bermuda today. Passengers and mails were safely landed.

POLITENESS IN JAPAN.

Even "Giving Notice" Is Made an Occasion of Compliments.

Politeness distinguishes the relations between mistresses and maids in Japan. It is so inexorable in Japan that even the ceremony of "giving notice" is turned into an occasion of compliments. There are no vulgar threats or sulking or recriminations or soldiering or "answering back." A servant will never tell her mistress that she is dissatisfied or has had some better place offered her. That would be unpardonably rude. Instead she asks for a few days' leave of absence. This is willingly granted, for Japanese servants have no settled time for taking holidays.

At the end of the given time the mistress will begin to wonder what has become of the girl. She is not left to wonder long. A letter arrives couched in the most polite and humble terms and giving any excuse but the real one. Sometimes it will be that she has found herself too weak for service or that illness at home detains her. Whatever it may be, the plea is never contested, but accepted as final and a new servant engaged. Then, after some weeks have passed, very likely after taking a fresh place, the old servant will turn up one day, express her thanks for past kindnesses and regrets at not returning in time, will take her arrears of wages and her bundles and disappear forever. So the matter ends with the kindest semblance of feeling on both sides.

If the mistress on her part does not wish to have the girl back, she will not tell her so to her face, but will send word. Even when servants come on trial for a few days they often leave nominally to fetch their belongings or make arrangements for their return, never because they have any "complaints" to make. Any discomfort is to be endured rather than the suspicion of bad manners or of anything leading up to a "scene."

Breaking It Gently.
Young Wife—Why, dear, you were the stroke out at college, weren't you?
Young Husband—Yes, love.

"And a very prominent member of the gymnastic club."
"I was the captain."
"And quite a hand at all athletic exercises."

"Quite a hand? Why, I was the champion walker, the best runner, the head man at lifting heavy weights, and as for carrying, why, I assure you, I could shoulder with ease a barrel of."

"Well, love, just please hold the baby for a couple of hours. The nurse has gone out, and I'm tired!"

Japanese is the language to be added to the list taught at the University of Chicago.

STAGECOACH DAYS.

Story of a Trip From Portsmouth to London in 1780.

There are men and women—and they are not always the old—who deplore the breathless pace of the age. In stagecoach days, they tell us, life was a different thing. People journeyed through the years leisurely their existence had a flavor. A century ago a journey meant fellowship and merry adventures and a comfortable enjoyment of the beauties of the landscape.

All this may be so, but a traveler who made the journey from Portsmouth to London in 1780 shows that even stagecoach days had their shadows.

"The getting up on the coach alone was at the risk of one's life," he wrote, "and when I was up I had nothing to hold on to except a little handle at the side. The moment we set off I thought I saw certain death before me. The machine rolled with tremendous rapidity over the stones and every minute seemed to fly in the air, so that it appeared to me a complete miracle that we stuck to the coach at all."

"This continual fear of death at last became insupportable to me, and I carefully crept along the top of the coach and unconsciously myself in the basket behind."

"On a sudden the coach proceeded at a rapid rate down a hill. All the boxes, iron nailed and copper fastened, began to dance around me, and every moment I received such violent blows that I thought my last hour had come. Shaken to pieces, bleeding and sore, I crept back to my former position. And it rained incessantly, and as before we were covered with dust so now we were soaked with rain."

"My neighbor every now and then fell asleep and when in this state perpetually rolled and jolted against me with the whole weight of his body, more than once nearly pushing me from the seat to which I clung with the last strength of despair. I looked and certainly felt like a crazy fool when I arrived in London."

The letter is realistic. It is possible that twentieth century traveling, although unromantic, has its compensations after all.—Youth's Companion.

POULTRY POINTERS.

When chickens grow very fast, it sometimes causes leg weakness.

Under usual conditions a variety of food is better than any medicine that can be given.

The only safe way of disposing of dead fowls that have died of any contagious disease is to burn them.

Clover contains two elements that are in demand by the hens—nitrogen and lime. It is rich in the elements required for the whites of eggs.

When roup gets into a flock, it invariably leaves some ailment behind. The fowl that has been subject to it is seldom healthy again.

There is no cure for feather pulling except by more labor and time than an ordinary flock is worth. The best plan is to get rid of the guilty fowls as soon as possible.

A hen seldom begins to eat eggshells until she finds one broken or until she becomes accustomed to eating eggs thrown out into the yard. The safest plan is always to crumble them up fine before feeding.

Taming the Cheetah in India.

The cheetah is tamed in all directions, principally from a thick grummet of rope around his loins, while a hood fitted over his head effectually blinds him. He is fastened on a strong cot bedstead, and the keepers and their wives and families reduce him to submission by starving him and keeping him awake. His head is made to face the village street, and for an hour at a time several times a day his keepers make pretended rushes at him and wave cloths, staves and other articles in his face. He is talked to continually, and women's tongues are believed to be the most effective antisoporifics. No created being could resist the effects of hunger, want of sleep and feminine scolding, and the poor cheetah becomes pitiously, abjectly tame.—"Beast and Man in India."

Tunnel Discomforts.

The prairie dog that had started out to see the world was taking in the sights in a neighboring village inhabited by his own species.

"Well," he said as he backed hastily out of a subterranean dwelling that a rattlesnake had pre-empted. "I see they have the same tunnel problem to solve here that they have in other cities."—Chicago Tribune.

A Platform Speaker.

"That man," remarked Smithers, "makes a hundred speeches from the platform every day."

"Some great political leader?" asked Smithers.

"No," replied Smithers, "street car conductor. He says, 'Move up forward, please' every time any one gets on his car."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

The Advantage of Waiting.

Her Father—But, my boy, surely you are too young to marry Aurelia. How old are you?

Her Suitor—One and twenty, sir.

Her Father—And she is twenty-seven—too great a disparity. Why not wait half a dozen years? Then you'll be twenty-seven and she'll probably be just about the same age as you.

A Sane Conclusion.

Uncle Reuben says: "After arguin' fur forty yars dat de whale couldn't possibly have swallered Jener and makin' three or four enemies a year ober it I has come to de conclusion dat my belief, one way or de odder, wouldn't affect de past 2 cents' worth. I have simply wasted a heap of breath fur nuthin'."—Detroit Free Press.

THE RESULTS OF A JOKE

(Original)

Tom Shafte was always trying to be facetious.

Tom's facetiousness cost him so many friends that he was finally reduced to but one man, who stuck to him. This was Albertus Whitright. Whitright was an exemplary young man with an exemplary young wife. The Whitrights were members of St. Andrew's church, and Burt was always on hand Sunday nights to show strangers to seats and pass the plate. Mrs. Whitright before her marriage had made it an indispensable condition that the man she married should be a good churchman, and as she considered her church the only true church Burt was obliged to be confirmed before he became her husband.

Shafte was quite intimate with the Whitrights, counting Mrs. Whitright one of his closest friends, as well as her husband. Frequently when Burt was detained late at the office Tom would keep his wife company. One night Tom called at the Whitrights' about 10 o'clock, and though he remained till 12, the husband did not return.

"You needn't look for Burt till 3 o'clock in the morning," said Tom.

"Why not?" asked the wife, looking up surprised.

"Why, this is the night of the French ball. Burt is undoubtedly there."

Now, every one who lives in New York knows that the French ball or annual gathering given by the Cercle Francaise is a masquerade composed of elements and productive of antics rendering it an unfit place for one occupying a high place in the church. Mrs. Whitright looked shocked and was about to make an indignant reply when she remembered Tom's proclivity for facetiousness. She simply looked grave and said nothing. Shafte, seeing that the lady declined to be jollied on so serious a subject, turned it and began to talk of other matters. Soon after he took his leave.

At 3 in the morning Whitright put his night key into the lock and let himself in softly, thinking that his wife was asleep and not wishing to disturb her. To his surprise, she was sitting in the library.

"Why, my precious darling, what are you doing up at this time?"

"It is a wife's duty to bear her husband's burdens with him. If you must work so late, I decline to rest in a luxurious bed."

"It's very lovely of you, but unnecessary."

"What was the nature of your work tonight?"

"An error in the cash. I was obliged to find it or carry it over, which would have made it all the worse."

"By the bye, did you know that this is the night of the French ball?"

"French ball?" Whitright started.

"Yes."

"What do you know about the French ball?"

"I know that it is an improper ball for my husband to attend."

"I? My dear, so you accuse me of such a thing?"

"I have been told that you were there."

Whitright caught at the back of a chair for support.

"Who told you such a thing?"

"One of your intimate friends."

"H-h-how d-did he know?"

"That doesn't matter. Burt, I am ashamed of you, a man of your position. And to think that you should have so deceived me! I shall never have any confidence in you again."

Mrs. Whitright took out her handkerchief, wiped her eyes and, rising, went upstairs. There was weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth between the Whitrights not only that night, but for nights and days to come.

The next afternoon Shafte saw Whitright coming down the street and had a joke ready for him. What was his surprise to see Whitright pass him with his head in the air. Shafte hurried after him.

"What in the world's the matter, Burt? Have you gone blind?"

"I have always supposed," replied the other angrily, "that you had the decency not to give a man away to his own wife."

"I give you away to your wife? I never did any such thing."

"You did it last night."

"Last night? How?"

"You informed my wife that I was at the French ball."

"You at the French ball? Who would believe that you would go to such a place? Certainly not I. Now I remember I did say something of the sort as a joke."

"Joke or no joke, I was at the French ball. I was masked, and no one would have known it if it hadn't been for your contemptible give away. Good morning."

And with a snort Whitright broke away from Shafte, and their friendship came to a termination.

The end is not yet. Mrs. Whitright, who had a conscience like a poker, decided that her husband was not in a spiritual condition to go to the communion table. All her troubles were divided into two classes, the one for her doctor, the other for her pastor. This was for her pastor. She confided the whole affair to him. The pastor invited the delinquent to his study, and told him that the offense must go to the vestry. When Whitright met the vestry, he regretted the matter, especially as he had intended subscribing $500 for the church, whereupon the vestry decided that the French ball was not necessarily a place interdicted to a churchman.

The Whitrights remained at home the next summer and saved money to pay the subscription.

CHINESE MAGIC LANTERNS.

How Their Instruments Differ From Those in Use in This Country.

The magic lantern, like porcelain, gunpowder and printing, may have been an invention of the Chinese. For more than twenty centuries it has been a staple amusement in the Celestial empire and has been developed into many forms unknown to the occident. The Middle Kingdom, which has been well termed Topsy Turvy Land, uses the magic lantern in just the opposite manner from what we do, having the light and picture behind the screen, the same as in our parlor amusement of shadowgraphs. The commonest form of the magic lantern in the extreme orient is a large box supported on a tripod or four legged table. The box is about 4 feet wide by 2 high, and its front is made of ground glass, oiled silk or oiled white paper.

Over the box is a light framework of bamboo and cloth, which reaches to the ground and conceals the operator from the audience, but leaves the glass exposed to view. A powerful lamp in front of a concave reflector throws a strong light upon the glass or screen, as the case may be. The top of the box and the sides are half open to permit the introduction of small figures. This arrangement gives four distinct classes of instruments. With all four instruments the exhibitions are given in the streets, squares and market places.

They draw audiences ranging from five to thirty and give an entertainment of from five to fifteen minutes in length. Each spectator is supposed to contribute 1 cent, or a twentieth of a cent, when the hat is passed around. Generous or enthusiastic patrons frequently give from 10 to 15 cents, so that the average performance nets the proprietor about 2 cents. This seems ridiculous to Americans, but in a land where an able-bodied man can be hired for 5 cents a day the owner of a successful magic lantern is looked upon as a very well to do individual.

The little plays which are written about the magic figures are as conventional as our own immortal Punch and Judy. The "wicked tiger" depicts the career of a dissolute animal who from killing pigs, dogs and buffaloes finally eats a beautiful maiden and is slain by a Mongolian chief in full armor on horseback. "The wicked wife" forms a compact with the devil, squanders her husband's substance in riotous living and, in the last scene, hangs herself in a blaze of red fire, while the evil one expresses wild joy in extraordinary oriental gesticulations. "The cruel magician," "the grateful dragon," "the fairy foxes" and other bits of eastern folklore afford brief sketches, which are as familiar as household words.—New York Post.

To Give the Sack.

Two noblemen in the reign of Maximilian II.—1564-1566—one a German, the other a Spaniard, who had each rendered a great service to the emperor, asked the hand of his daughter in marriage. Maximilian said that as he esteemed them both alike it was impossible to choose between them, and therefore their own prowess must decide it; but, being unwilling to risk the loss of either by engaging them in deadly combat, he ordered a large sack to be brought and declared that he who should put his rival into it should have his fair Helena. And this whimsical combat was actually performed in the presence of the imperial court and lasted an hour. The unhappy Spanish nobleman was first overcome, and the German succeeded in enveloping him in the sack, took him upon his back and laid him at the emperor's feet. This comical combat is said to be the origin of the phrase "give him the sack," so common in the literature of courting.

One Phase of the Nile.

In the Shab Luka pass we have one of the many instances in which the Nile has hurried itself at an opposing mountain barrier and cut its way through. In fact, it often seems to select these unpropitious places for its course when on each side a few miles away there is a tolerably level, unbroken expanse of desert. For ten miles the river twists in and out before escaping to the open ocean more. Its current is very rapid, making it well nigh impassable at low water because of the numerous rocks, but at the time of my descent the summer flood was well along, and all but a few of these barriers were hidden below the surface, their presence being marked only by occasional eddies.—Century.

A Comfort Anyway.

"Speaking of growths remarks," said the ruddy old Scotch gentleman on his way from the far west to revisit Scotland for the first time in half a century, "there was an old lady friend of mine in San Francisco who persisted in looking upon this journey of mine as a madly adventurous tempting of Providence. 'Yet there is one thing comforts me, Robert, my man,' she said. 'When one dies in vagrancy nowadays, they're such excellent facilities for transporting the remains.'"—New York Telegram.

And That Ended Nora.

Mrs. Aufait—Now, Nora, be very careful of this old glass punch bowl. It cost a mint of money.

Nora—Indeed, mum? Well, it's rare tough. Sure an' I dropped it three times already an' niver fazed it.—Life.

His Query.

She—Do I really love you, Cholly?

Why, I'd sooner be miserable with you than happy with some other fellow.

He—But are you sure you won't find some other chap that you'd sooner be miserable with.—Puck.

JUDGE HOKE

He Disposes of Two Important Cases

(Copyright, 1902, by R. A. Barrett.)

"THIS court havin' come to order and been duly opened," said Judge Hoke, after rapping on the desk before him the first case on the docket is that of Joe Shaw versus Bill Thompson. As a case it don't amount to much. It don't amount to much because both plaintiff and prisoner are critics of no account and ought to have been run out of the kentry years ago. I shall do all the talkin' myself, and if either one of 'em has hired a shyster lawyer to do any oratin' he's bound to be disappointed."

"Let's see what the case amounts to. Joe Shaw is comin' over Lost mountain astraddle of a mule. He says he gave a claim for that mule, but I'll bet ten to one he picked the critter up somewhere on a dark night. He was headed for this town, calkerlatin' the value of that mule would buy him a keg of whisky, when he suddenly meets up with Bill Thompson. It will surprise most of ye to learn that Bill drew his gun and ordered Joe out of the saddle. In the first place no one around yere ever saw Bill have a weapon of any sort, and in the next place he ain't looked upon as a man of sand. However, he actually leveled a gun at Joe and bluffed him into gettin' down on the ground and givin' up that mule."

"Joe was also heeled, and accordin' to his own statement he let twenty-three good chances of bowlin' Bill over-pass him by in order to come to me just at the busiest hour in the Red Dog saloon and demand justice. When justice is demanded, I've got to ladle it out. I issued a warrant, had Bill arrested, and an hour ago I heard his statement of the case. He's powerful good at lyin', but now and then he does hit the truth, and I guess he has in this case."

"Justice ain't sloshin' around with her protectin' arms thrown over everybody. She calkulates that every man with a gun has got sand enough to purtect his own. It's only the man who has forgot his shooter or has run short of cartridges who has any right to holler for the purtection of justice. It was an even thing between Joe and Bill from the start. Justice wasn't in it. She wasn't needed. Bill bluffed and Joe witted. If Joe couldn't call that hand, he ought to have felt doggoned mean to say anything about it. He might have pulled trigger and recovered his own, but he got down and walked seven miles to demand justice of me. Well, I'm goin' to give it to him, and Bill as well. The verdict of this court is that both critters be turned loose and run into the bushes by an impetuous population, and if either one of 'em ever dares show his face ag'in in Dandy Bend he'll need a new frame of bones to hang his shirt on. As for the mule in question, he's valued at $10."

Not a Comfortable Resting Place.

Finnicus—I wonder why it is that those who attain the pinnacle of success never seem to be happy.

Cynicus—Because the pinnacle of success is like the top of a particularly tall lightning rod with a particularly sharp point, and those who succeed in perching temporarily upon it usually find that they are targets for all the world's thunder.—Town and Country.

What He Thought.

Old Gentleman (nearsighted)—Who is that stranger coming up the walk, daughter?

Daughter—Why, that is Reggie, papa! You know I told you he was coming to speak to you today.

Old Gentleman—Ah, yes! I see now. Don't you know, at first I thought it was a man.—Chicago News.

Knew How.

"Old Hums told you more of his business secrets in five minutes than he has ever told anybody else in five years. How did you worm it out of him?"

"I didn't do any worming at all. I just patted him on the back and let him pur."—Chicago Tribune.

Softer.

"I have no doubt you have heard some stories to my discredit," he said.

"I don't like to put it in that way," she quietly replied.

"How then?" he hopefully asked.

"I have never heard any stories to your credit," said she.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

he hasn't and is prepared to enter a shoothin' match to uphold his verdict.

"Pint No. 2. Has a wife a legal right to pack her duds and walk off any time she feels she can do better? Ag'in this court is opposed to the opinions of six shysters. They contend not, but my verdict is that she has the right and will be protected in maintainin' it."

"Havin' now disposed of the plints of law, which haven't caused me to lose any sleep, I will dispose of the case—that is, I have disposed of it. When I was over at the jail an hour ago, a purty fair specimen of a man was hangin' around there with a wistful look on his face."

"What d'ye want?" says I.

"A wife," says he.

"Most anything that kin fry bacon."

"It strikes me that the best way out of this muddle is to get rid of 'Slappin' Sal,' so I turns her loose and she goes off with the stranger and is three miles away by this time. The plaintiff and defendant will be turned loose after forkin' over the legal costs, and if they want to follow on and get up a row over in Woodchuck county I haven't the slightest objections. Woodchuck is out of my jurisdiction, and the wabble legged dispenser of justice for that territory kin handle the case to suit his self."

"As the docket is now clear, we will adjourn court and get across the creek in time to witness the hoss race set for 'leven o'clock. I'm bettin' two to one on the spotted hoss, but it don't legally follow that all the rest of ye must follow suit or be guilty of contempt of court. I seek to dispense justice, not to barrel up the glorious air of freedom and keep my own mouth at the bung-hole."

A Close Shave.

A little girl in a neighboring village had been looking at some pictures of angels and turned to her mother and asked, "Mamma, why are there no men in heaven?"

"Why, there are men in heaven," replied the mother.

"Then why is it," asked the child, "that we never see any angels with whiskers or mustaches?"

"Because, dear, they get in by a close shave."—Tarrytown News.

Infirmity Patients.

On the first of June next the new law providing that all insane, idiotic and epileptic patients confined at county infirmaries goes into effect. Ticking County, however, already has more than her quota in the State Hospital and no more patients from this county will be accepted unless the Sheriff returns one patient to the infirmaries for every one admitted to the State Hospital. Auditor Pitser informed an Advocate reporter that the authorities are preparing to build an addition to the State Hospital, and when that is finished, Ticking county's quota will be considerably larger.

Mrs. Barbee's Sudden Illness.

Mrs. J. U. Barbee and two daughters, Mary and Anna, went to Columbus on Saturday morning to spend a few days with friends. After reaching her destination Mrs. Barbee sat down to dinner when she was attacked by a floating cartilage in her leg and was not able to move from the table without the assistance of some one. Mr. Barbee went over to Columbus Sunday evening and returned Monday morning with his wife and children. Mrs. Barbee is still in a very bad condition at her home, 51 Dewey avenue.

OUTVILLE.

Dr. Letherman was called to Columbus to hold a counsel with the physician who has been attending his sister, Pearl, who has been suffering with typhoid fever for the past eight weeks.

Dr. Letherman removed a tumor from the eye of Miss Evans on Saturday.

Sunday, February 8th was the anniversary of the birth of Mrs. Winter and she looked forward to having a good time with her children. The children, however, concluded to give her a surprise, and informed her that it would be impossible for any of them to be at home, except her son, Chester. Shortly before train time, however, her daughter, Miss Georgie, had her go out to do the milking, and during her absence her children all came in and hid themselves in one of the upper rooms of the house. When Mrs. Winter returned to the house and found no one there except Chester, the tears rolled down her face over the disappointment. In a short time, however, the children all came trooping down the stairs, and such a surprise. Each one tried to laugh and talk at the same time. The day was spent in having a good social time, which was seasoned with a sumptuous dinner, to which all did justice. Mrs. Winter was the recipient of a number of useful and valuable presents.

Mr. John Gamble was the recipient of a delightful surprise from his friends on Saturday evening, it being the 27th anniversary of his birth, several families from Newark being in attendance. A fine supper was served and Mr. Gamble was presented with an easy rocking chair and a number of other useful presents. The affair was a most enjoyable one.

Rock-a-Bye Baby

These are sweet words, but how much pain and suffering they used to mean. It's different now. Since Mother's Friend has become known expectant mothers have been spared much of the anguish of childbirth. Mother's Friend is a liniment to be applied externally. It is rubbed thoroughly into the muscles of the abdomen. It gives elasticity and strength, and when the final great strain comes they respond quickly and easily without pain. Mother's Friend is never taken internally. Internal remedies at this time do more harm than good. If a woman is supplied with this splendid liniment she need never fear rising or swelling, nausea, morning sickness, or any of the discomforts which usually accompany pregnancy.

The proprietor of a large hotel in Tampa, Fla., writes: "My wife had an awful time with her first child. During her second pregnancy, Mother's Friend was used and the baby was born easily before the doctor arrived. It's certainly great."

CONFERENCE

Of the American Missionary Association at Plymouth Congregational Church, Feb. 12.

The American Missionary Association will hold a conference Thursday, Feb. 12, at the Plymouth Congregational church. The conference will include two sessions at 2:30 p. m. and 7 p. m. Three speakers will be present at both sessions. Rev. George W. Moore, general missionary of the South, Rev. James K. Higginbotham, an American Hollander, born and bred in the hill country, and Rev. E. G. Haynes a Jax speaker whose experience in the South in his struggle for education bears directly upon the important negro problem, which the nation is beginning to grasp, and when we remember that the 12th day of February is the 94th birthday anniversary of Lincoln, our martyred president, the best and truest friend the negro ever had, we cannot but feel a deep interest in their welfare. Rev. H. H. Proctor, a colored minister says: "We are not all angels yet, but we are not the devils some would make you believe."

All church people and others in general are most cordially invited to come and share in these services and receive a portion at least of the good things to be distributed. Good music will be furnished in connection with both services.

Baseball in Zanesville.

Messrs. Fred Drumm and William Anderson, the baseball promoters will arrive in Zanesville Wednesday, for the purpose of completing all arrangements for the establishing of a team.

Mr. Anderson was the owner of the anton team for years. Mr. Drumm was the manager. They have been successful in all their undertakings in this line and are well able financially to back the local team.

On a former visit to the city they had a conference with the street railway people and upon the assurances given them they at once went to work signing their players and making all other arrangements. They have even gone so far in this line as to book the Boston National league team for a three days' play early in the summer. While here Wednesday they will again meet with the street railway men and if grounds are assured them they will lose no time in preparing for an early start in the spring.

Several of the old Zanesville favorites may again play in that city. It is probable that Cliff Hammond and William Dithridge will be signed.

In the choice of grounds Gant park will be given the first consideration but if the park cannot be secured satisfactorily to all concerned then another site will be looked for.

Newark is Wanted.

Mr. F. M. Smith, Secretary of the Lumber Dealers' Association, of this city, has received a letter from James F. Reynolds, Secretary of the Mansfield baseball club, stating that the old inter-State baseball league was being reorganized and that they would like very much to have Newark join the league. He says that Mansfield will play Sunday ball, and that they will have a park on one of the interurban lines, outside of the city for Sunday games, and that at least one-half of the cities of the circuit will play Sunday ball; that New Castle, Wheeling, Youngstown, Canton and Mansfield are already in line, and that it is very desirable that Newark put a team in the league. Other cities that will be in the league are Sandusky, Lima, Springfield, Zanesville, Akron, Findlay and some Pennsylvania towns. Mr. Reynolds says the object is to get as compact a circuit as possible, in order to avoid long railroad jumps and at the same time have good live cities in the league. Practically all the towns have been interested in the new league and men are now at work in them trying to raise funds, and word from them is being awaited before further steps are taken.

MILLIONAIRE MINSTREL

Says He Owes His Good Health to Blood Wine

Probably no one in the theatrical profession has been more successful, has made more friends, or is any better known than Henry. From one end of the United States to the other he is called the millionaire minstrel king. Mr. Henry is wise in a great many things, one of which is the keeping of his health. Loss of sleep, irregular meals, all kinds of weather, and the mental anxiety necessary to successfully pilot his large and expensive company, last year almost cost Mr. Henry his health. He did not linger one moment in determining what to do. He took "Blood Wine" and it completely drove out of his system the tendencies to sickness and disease. These are Mr. Henry's own words:

"I have been asked so many times lately the cause of my good health and general improved condition, that I feel like letting you know that it has been brought about by the use of your 'Blood Wine,' which I consider a most remarkable remedy."

"The remedy is one of sterling virtue, and withal devoid of that nauseous or drug taste one expects to find in medicine, it being what might be termed a very pleasant beverage, while its moderate cost places it within the reach of all."

"I feel quite certain that a trial will convince the user of its wonderful powers in the recuperation of wasted energy, the awakening of dormant functions and its general building up."

COULD NOT SLEEP.

Here is another case where "Blood Wine" restored a person to health that was all run down. Mrs. Warren Lamphier, of 32 Mudge Street, Lynn, Mass., makes this statement:

"Household cares so wore upon my mind that I could not sleep well and constant worry brought on a pronounced case of nervous exhaustion. I lost flesh rapidly; my appetite failed and my kidneys got all out of order. My physician prescribed a radical change of scene and suggested travel. I could not leave my duties, however. Some one told me of the wonderful cures 'Blood Wine' has made. I decided to try it. It did me good from the start and after three or four bottles, I could sleep regularly, eat heartily and my kidneys were in a splendid condition. It is all that it is represented to be, and I will never be without a bottle of 'Blood Wine.'"

There is a reason—a good, sensible, logical reason—why "Blood Wine" cures disease. Every one knows that the seat of nearly every disease is in the blood. Remove this trouble and you get well. "Blood Wine" will always remove disease when it is in the blood. Fifty cents a bottle. Try it today and get well.

Dixon Fought a Draw.

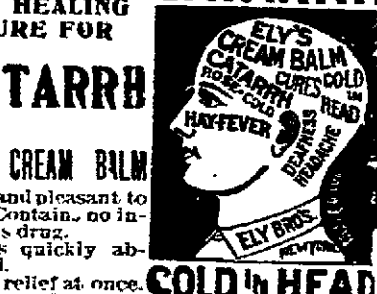

London, Feb. 10—George Dixon, the American colored pugilist fought a twenty round draw with Harry Ware of London at Northampton on Monday night. The stake was $1500 and a crowd of 400 witnessed the contest.

Ware seemed to be the clearest of the two at the start and had the better of the bout up to the fourth round, when Dixon punished him severely about the body. There was heavy fighting until the fourteenth round Dixon tired Ware out and could not himself land a knockout blow.

LABOR TICKET

Is Headed by Thos. H. Quinney a Republican Glass Blower

W. T. Curry, a Molder and Member of Same Party Nominated for Auditor--Some Trouble in Securing Candidates for the Positions.

There was a limited outpouring of the public spirit at the convention of the laboring men of the city Monday evening and it was with the greatest difficulty that a partial ticket was placed in the field.

Thomas H. Quinney, a Republican and a glass blower, was nominated for mayor, while W. T. Curry, a Republican and molder, president of the convention and president of the Newark Trades and Union Labor Council, was nominated for city auditor. John W. Adams, Democrat, who also attained prominence in starting the movement to place a ticket in the field, was nominated for a member of the Board of Public Service.

After the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, which were approved by the people present, a set of ringing and rattling resolutions were adopted as the platform of the "Labor Party." The platform is as follows, being more or less socialistic in its general trend:

Labor Party Platform.

Resolved, That the workmen of Newark, Ohio, in convention assembled, affirm the right to protect themselves by electing men to municipal office who will represent the mechanic, the laborer and wage worker, and that we oppose child and convict labor and that we favor the passage of laws compelling convict made goods to be stamped "Convict Made," and that we are opposed to trusts and combinations of capital which act not alone to curtail competition and limit production, but the wage worker. Such trusts are now fast reducing the bread winner to a degree of slavery without parallel in the world's history.

Resolved, That we are in favor of election of all public offices by popular vote and that we favor the abolition of government by injunction in contests between capital and labor. We also favor the initiative and referendum vote, also equal civil, religious and political rights for all men. We also favor the municipal ownership of all public utilities and we also favor the letting of all contracts for city work to our own citizen contractors, and that none but Newark mechanics and laborers be employed on all city work except when artisans are wanted and none reside here, and be it resolved that an entire ticket to be known as the "Labor Ticket" to be voted for at the coming spring municipal election which occurs Monday, April 6, 1903.

(Signed.)
W. T. CURRY,
THOMAS H. QUINNEY,
FRANK VERHEIM.

John W. Adams arose and stated that it was not necessary to nominate a ticket at once, as the ticket need not be named until the 12th of March.

Despite Mr. Adams' suggestion that there was plenty of time some of the self constituted delegates present showed a marked impatience to get into the fray. Charles Wilson, a molder, moved that the nominations be made at once. Mr. Adams then asked, "Are we ready to take hold of this thing? We have plenty of time. Neither old party has done anything yet. I move that we adjourn until another meeting assembled at the call of the chairman of the committee."

Mr. Pfeiffer, a cigar maker, was in favor of making the nominations immediately and so expressed himself. In reply to him Mr. Adams said: "I want to elicit the views of those present. The old parties are doing all in their power to prevent this. They are getting in their work. There are things we can do also. The bone and sinew of those present have just as much brains as any of the old parties."

Henry Keyser, a machinist, asked why "we can't all pull together and blow that bubble so hard it won't bust" (referring to a beautiful and poetical metaphor created by John Dial at a previous meeting, who likened the movement to the blowing of a soap bubble which might "go 'way up and wouldn't hurt anything if it did bust.")

President W. T. Curry called for a standing vote on the question. The vote resulted 35 in favor of nominations at once and 27 against making nominations at once.

John Adams then arose and placed the name of Wm. D. Curry in nomination for mayor. Mr. Curry arose and emphatically refused to have this or any other nomination, speaking as follows: "I have taken an active part in this movement but not for personal gain. I believe a fight would be made against me for this reason. I would rather make a fight on the outside, as I can do more good there."

Jos. Fox, a painter, placed the name of Thomas Quinney in nomination. Mr. Quinney refused to have anything to do with it and said he would not serve if nominated. He said that his business interfered with his making the run and he said the reasons offered by President Curry were also applicable to him.

Jacob Swarms presented the name of John Adams.

Mr. Adams stated that he was not a candidate, that people on the streets had accused him of being a candidate but that he was not and while he thanked the gentleman for the honor he firmly refused to be a candidate for any office.

Joseph Fox arose and said: "I don't see why our active members can't run. They understand full well what working people need. I don't see why he (Adams) is not a qualified man." (Cries of "Adams, Adams.")

Names were then presented but all declined or were not present and declined by proxy. Herman Ellsner and John Dial were suggested, but both declined. Mr. Dial said that Quinney was the man to lead the hosts on to victory. Mr. Quinney looked a "Do you think so?" look and said nothing. Mr. Adams then arose and said: "If Mr. Quinney is a candidate he is the only one." I am not a candidate. There is no need of a vote if Mr. Quinney is a candidate. When I said I wasn't a candidate I meant it."

On motion of a delegate Mr. Quinney was nominated by acclamation. Mr. Quinney arose and stated that he had not been a candidate and admitted that he was in a predicament, as he had declined so positively earlier in the evening, but that as there must be some one "to shoot at" he was willing to offer himself as a sacrifice.

Mr. Fox then nominated Jno. Adams for City Auditor. Mr. Adams declined again and positively and firmly refused to have any nomination. When he stated that he was not a candidate, he said, he meant it. Ed Bloom, Frank Kane and Frank Knaubner were also suggested as candidates, but they all declined. A delegate then made a motion that President Wm. T. Curry be nominated by acclamation. The secretary called for a vote and Mr. Curry was declared to be duly nominated.

Mr. Curry arose and addressed the delegates and visitors as follows: "Brothers and Gentlemen: I've talked all the time against accepting nominations for personal reasons. I can fill the office. I don't doubt it. There are other reasons against me. You could have nominated a better man."

Jos. Fox nominated John Adams for member of the Board of Public Service.

Mr. Fox named Wm. Burton, of the Typographical Union as a member of the board. Mr. Burton declined. He said: "I have opposed this movement from the first and I refuse to have anything to do with it."

Mr. Keyser, a machinist, nominated John Dial, a switchman. The latter said: "I would be glad if you would leave me out of this. You have many brilliant minds here. I wish you wouldn't have a pick at me."

Mr. Shaw presented the name of E.

D. Everts. Members said that Mr. Everts had stated that he would not run. Ed Shaw stated that Mr. Everts had said that his first duty was to Union Labor. Mr. Keyser withdrew in favor of Sidney Smith.

John McFarland moved that Adams, Keyser and Everts be nominated by acclamation. Carried and the three were nominated.

Mr. McFarland presented the name of Charles Deardurff for president of the council.

Joseph Fox placed the name of W. T. Seymour in nomination. A vote resulted Deardurff 35, Seymour 8.

Three councilmen at large were nominated. Those who will run for this office are as follows: W. T. Seymour, Herman Ellsner and John Dial.

On motion of John McFarland, William Stone, a grocery clerk, was nominated by acclamation for city treasurer.

Township officers were nominated as follows:

Justice of the Peace, J. I. Dollison, a carpenter; township trustee, George Pfeiffer, a cigar maker; township treasurer, none nominated; constable, Joseph Fox, a painter.

The delegates were then divided into sections according to their respective wards.

The First ward ticket is as follows: Councilman, T. F. Roberts, fireman; assessor, Frank Kesler.

Second ward: Councilman, Sidney Smith, a switchman; assessor, E. Parkinson, a stage employee.

Third ward: Councilman, Dan Davis, a molder; assessor, Walker Pfeiffer.

Fourth ward: Councilman, James Coons, a cigar maker; assessor, Henry Johnson.

The Central committee is as follows: Harry Schrumm, E. M. Curry, Joseph Shaw, A. L. Donaldson, Dick Thompson, F. F. Wonderland, James Atherton, James Alspach, R. J. Brook, Ed Bloom.

The Executive committee was elected as follows: Harry Schrumm, John Dial, Frank Lippincott and George Warner.

The Executive committee will hold its first meeting Thursday evening at 7 o'clock at L. Donaldson's place of business. The next mass meeting will be held at the convention room of the court house two weeks from last Monday evening.

President Curry then read a story of how other laboring men had been elected and brought out the point that those nominated could also be elected.

In proportion to population more patents are issued to citizens of the District of Columbia than to those of any state. A recent compilation showed that Tennessee was at the foot of the list.

THE CHILDREN ENJOY

Life out of doors and out of the games which they play and the enjoyment which they receive and the efforts which they make, comes the greater part of that healthful development which is so essential to their happiness when grown. When a laxative is needed the remedy which is given to them to cleanse and sweeten and strengthen the internal organs on which it acts, should be such as physicians would sanction, because its component parts are known to be wholesome and the remedy itself free from every objectionable quality. The one remedy which physicians and parents, well-informed, approve and recommend and which the little ones enjoy, because of its pleasant flavor, its gentle action and its beneficial effects, is—Syrup of Figs—and for the same reason it is the only laxative which should be used by fathers and mothers.

Syrup of Figs is the only remedy which acts gently, pleasantly and naturally without griping, irritating, or nauseating and which cleanses the system effectually, without producing that constipated habit which results from the use of the old-time cathartics and modern imitations, and against which the children should be so carefully guarded. If you would have them grow to manhood and womanhood, strong, healthy and happy, do not give them medicines, when medicines are not needed, and when nature needs assistance in the way of a laxative, give them only the simple, pleasant and gentle—Syrup of Figs.

Its quality is due not only to the excellence of the combination of the laxative principles of plants with pleasant aromatic syrups and juices, but also to our original method of manufacture and as you value the health of the little ones, do not accept any of the substitutes which unscrupulous dealers sometimes offer to increase their profits. Please to remember, the full name of the Company—CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.—is printed on the front of every package. In order to get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine only. For sale by all reliable druggists.

TRIFLING WITH YOUR HEALTH

Is like Playing with a loaded Gun. If you have Kidney Trouble attend to it at once.

It is easy to tell whether your Kidneys or bladder are diseased. Take a bottle or glass tumbler and fill it with urine. If there is a sediment—a powder-like substance—after standing a day and night, if it is pale or discolored, rosy or stringy, there is something wrong with the Kidneys. Other sure signs of disease are a desire to urinate often, pain in the back, or if your urine stings linen.

There is no question that Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is the best and surest medicine in the world for diseases of the Kidneys, Liver, Bladder and Blood, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Chronic Constipation, and the sicknesses peculiar to women. It quickly relieves and cures inability to hold urine and the necessity of getting up a number of times during the night, and puts an end to the scalding pain when passing urine.

The Rev. Henry P. Miller, pastor Baptist Church, Spartanburg, S. C., writes: "For years I suffered with Kidney, liver and heart troubles, swimming in the head, dull headache and numbness of the limbs. Physicians prescribed for me and I took different medicines, but none of them did me any good. But Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy cured me in about two weeks."

It is for sale by all druggists in the New 50 Cent Size and the regular $1.00 size bottles—less than a cent a dose. Sample bottle—enough for trial, free by mail. Dr. David Kennedy Corporation, Rondout, N. Y.

W. C. Whitney's New Country Home

[Special Correspondence.]

Westbury, N. Y., Feb. 9.—The recent exhibition in New York of a beautiful stained glass window by La Farge has directed much attention toward the new country home of former Secretary of the Navy W. C. Whitney, where the La Farge window has found an alighting place. The Whitney mansion is at Wheatley Hills, not far from here, and is one of the largest mansions on Long Island. Yet it is so sheltered by its surroundings, which are well wooded, that one is almost upon it before noticing it.

An inspection at close quarters will disclose the fact that the entrance hall is about the most notable feature of what is throughout a beautiful and elaborately decorated house. The hall is large and lofty, a worthy repository for the Italian renaissance woodwork with which it is being decorated. It also contains two La Farge windows, the one lately exhibited and a companion piece that was executed some months ago. Both windows are remarkable as examples of delicate workmanship. The lead is applied in some places so nicely that it is not visible at first glance, and the windows are incased in sheets of glass, which serve still further to tone the delicate coloring.

The mansion is of brick, and the air of an English manor house is conveyed not only by its deep coloring, but by its many gables and deep eaves. Everything possible has been done in the exterior construction to take away from it as much as possible the appearance of newness. Antique oak is freely used in the trimmings of the veranda. The shingles are dark, the blinds finished in dull colors. In fact, the ensemble is such as to make the tones of the house harmonize with the surrounding woods and their glorious shadows.

Like all the great country estates near New York, the Whitney place is intended for more than a summer residence and has been built so substantially that it is fully as comfortable in winter as in summer. Indeed, country life in America no longer means life in the country during the sultry months; it continues, with a few breaks, all the year round. At the Whitney home house parties are given both winter and summer, Mr. Whitney's lavish hospitality being proverbial. The interior furnishings of the place, while costly, are sensible, and one finds furniture that can be used as well as admired. So even more remarkable than the manner itself are the stables connected with it. Mr. Whitney's great hobby is horse racing, and at Wheatley Hills he has built veritable palaces for his equine pets. The stables here are contained in what has the appearance of being a huge Swiss structure, 800 feet in length and 65 feet in width, with an extension 50 feet by 90 feet. This structure stands midway on a gentle slope falling toward the lowlands of the Hempstead plains and is so built that on fair days in winter the sun is never off the stalls, its rays being admitted to them by glass half doors.

The stalls, eighty in number, are of themselves worth attention. They are of the species known as box and are 20 feet long, 25 feet wide and 10 feet high. No stall is exposed to the weather in any way, for back of each is a passage twenty feet wide between the walls of the stall and the walls of the building. Pine and spruce are used in the woodwork, the stall flooring being of dry, hard packed earth.

On either side, as one enters the stable, are two comfortable offices, one for the head stableman and the other for the veterinary. In the extension is a big harness room, and on the floor above quarters for the hundred or more stablemen and boys who are kept busy until the horses are taken away for the racing season. On this floor, too, are a gymnasium, a library, a huge kitchen and a big cold storage room. An attractive cottage for the trainer is near the stables. In fact, nothing has been left undone to make the employees and their charges as comfortable as possible.

As is to be expected, the estate also boasts a private race track. This is a mile long, the first quarter mile being straightaway. There is also a private steeplechase course, one of the finest in the country. In addition to these Mr. Whitney has had an excellent golf course laid out, and has built a private gymnasium and squash courts for the use of the family and visitors.

What may be termed the landmark of the place is a huge windmill. As a matter of fact, this is the only feature of the estate noticeable from any distance, so thickly wooded is the country. The windmill is 175 feet high and stands on a lofty elevation, so that it is one of the most conspicuous objects of this section of Long Island.

CHAT ABOUT AUTHORS.

The Creator of "Mrs. Wiggs" Marries—A Story About Riley. [Special Correspondence.]

New York, Feb. 9.—Mrs. Alice Hegun Rice, the author of the new book, "Lover Mary," and of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," wrote the latter, her first book, under her maiden name, Alice Caldwell Hegan. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Hegan of Louisville, Ky. As Miss Hegan she was for a long time interested in the people of the "po' white" quarters of Louisville. There she found her characters. The sale of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" has been very large; in fact, it has exceeded that of any other book ever issued by the Century company. During the three weeks preceding Christmas 62,000 copies were sent out by the publishers, and even after the holidays were over the sale was averaging 3,000 and 2,000 a day.

Here are some gems of epigram culled from books of the hour:

Popularity—it is a shadow! Turn your eyes toward it, and it shall ever run before you, escaping you. Turn your back upon it, walk religiously toward the living sun, and it shall follow you.—Jerome K. Jerome in "Paul Kelter."

There is no fatalism like that of the indifferent man who believes in nothing, not even in himself, and who admits nothing to be positive except crime and dishonor.—Marion Crawford in "Ocella."

The only ghosts, I believe, who creep into this world are dead young mothers, returned to see how their children fare. There is no other inducement great enough to bring the departed back.—James M. Barrie in "The Little White Bird."

Good humor is a form of tenderness. Those who are easy to laugh are likewise ready to be sorry. And they have a fund of sympathy to draw on whenever the necessity arises.—Joel Chandler Harris in "Gabriel Tolliver."

I tell you the fascination of this pit gambling is something no one who hasn't experienced it can have any conception of. I believe it is worse than liquor, worse than morphine. Once you get into it it grips you and draws you and draws you, and the nearer you get to the end the easier it seems to win, till all of a sudden, ah, there's the whirlpool!—Frank Norris in "The Pit."

Don't you go an' git sorry fer yerself. That's one thing I can't stand in nobody. There's always lots of other folks you kin be sorry fer 'stid of yerself. Ain't you proud you ain't got a barefoot? Why, that one thought is enough to keep me from ever gittin' sorry fer myself.—Alice Caldwell Hegan in "Lover Mary."

If you can't be really happy, pretend that you are happy, and the first thing you know it will be a reality.—Joel Chandler Harris in "Gabriel Tolliver."

From Washington comes a story about James Whitcomb Riley which may or may not be true, but which is worth the telling. It is to the effect that Billy Ethell, a capitol attaché, has recently received a letter from the poet of all Hoosierdom. Ethell says that he and Riley are old chums and that years ago they both worked together for an Indiana sign painter.

"Jim has money in his pocket now," says Ethell. "He told me once that some day he would be rich and that when he came into his own he intended to carry money in every pocket, just to see how good it felt. I met him in Indianapolis a couple of years ago and reminded him of his prediction."

"Well, it came true," said Jim, reaching for his pockets. He brought out bills from each pocket in his overcoat and then fished down into his coat and vest and brought out more bills from every pocket. Then his hands dived into his trousers, and he hauled out silver and small bills from both sides and from his pistol pockets. Finally he went into his watch pocket and brought out a $5 goldpiece.

"There you are," he said triumphantly. "I have got money in every pocket."

Philip Verrill Mighels, whose novel, "The Inevitable," has been attracting attention, says that while in London engaged upon the original draft of his novel he found himself at last so haunted by neglected duties that he took a day in which to attend to many small affairs of business. It was summer. After a long and trying ordeal Mr. Mighels arrived at his home late in the afternoon weary and disgusted.

"I went to my agent's and then to see Mrs. Blank's solicitor and then to the offices of five different editors and finally to see my publisher," he said. "The agent is on the continent, the lawyer hadn't shown up all day at his office, two of the editors are ill, one is on his vacation, and the remaining two could not be found, while the publisher has moved I don't know where. I stopped for a minute at Goldsmith's grave. Of all the persons I called upon all day Goldsmith was the only one who was in."

Authors need not be discouraged when they compare the possible results of their labors with those of business men. General Lew Wallace has built a huge modern apartment house in Indianapolis solely out of the proceeds of his novel "The Prince of India." And it is well known that the popular success of the latter has not equaled that of the perennial "Ben-Hur." It is quite probable that "Ben-Hur" has supplied the wherewithal for a number of apartment houses.

MARRIAGE

By Samuel Rogers

A RECENT writer says of Samuel Rogers, poet and banker, "If refined tastes, love of literature, wealth, honor and length of days constitute human happiness, he ought to have been one of the happiest of men." Rogers was born in London in 1793 and died at the age of ninety-two. He received an academic education, succeeded to his father's banking business at thirty and retired with a large income at forty. His principal works are "Pleasures of Memory," "Italy" and "Human Life." He was never married.

THEN before All they stand—the holy vow
And ring of gold, no fond illusions now.
Bind her as his. Across the threshold led,
And every tear kissed off as soon as shed.
His house she enters—there to be a light,
Shining within, when all without is night;
A guardian angel o'er his life presiding,
Doubling his pleasures and his cares dividing,
Winning him back when mingling in the throng,
Back from a world we love, alas! too long,
To freestone happiness, to hours of ease,
Blest with that charm, the certainty to please.
How oft her eyes read his; her gentle mind
To all his wishes, all his thoughts inclined;
Still subject—ever on the watch to borrow
Mirth of his mirth and sorrow of his sorrow!
The soul of music slumbers in the shell,
Till waked and kindled by the master's spell,
And feeling hearts—touch them but rightly—pour
A thousand melodies unheard before!

THE CHILDREN'S HOUR

By Longfellow

BETWEEN the dark and the daylight,
When the twilight is beginning to lower,
Comes a pause in the day's occupations,
That is known as the Children's Hour.

From my study I look in the lamplight,
Descending the great hall stair,
Grave Alice, and young Allegra,
And Edith with a golden hair.
A whisper, and the silence:
"Let I know but a merry eyes
They are plotting and planning together
To take me by surprise."
A sudden rush from the stairway,
A sudden raid on the hall!
By three doors I am guarded,
They enter my chamber wall.
They climb up the stairway,
Over the arms of my chair,
If I try to escape, surround me,
They seem to be everywhere.

Stories of Washington Life

[Special Correspondence.]

Washington, Feb. 9. The mystery of President Roosevelt's visits to the Tenthlytown woods, which he has been making every morning for several days, has been solved. After the manner of England's "grand old man" he has been felling trees primarily for the purpose of working off some of his surplus energy and incidentally to remove the superfluous growth of the forest.

The forest belongs to the Dutch Reformed church of which the president is a member.

The trees on the land are so close together that they have little chance to develop properly, and the trustees decided to thin them out. They asked the president to have Gifford Pinchot, the expert forester of the agricultural department, indicate the trees which should be removed. The president said he would attend to the matter, but he did it in a manner not anticipated by the church trustees.

He notified Mr. Pinchot to meet him in the woods in the early morning and be provided with axes. Thus the president and the forester after deciding that a tree should be removed proceeded to remove it, and so Mr. Roosevelt has been performing the Gladstonian achievement of chopping down a tree every morning, something over fifty having been felled with the ax wielded by the hands that rule the nation.

Representative Kahn of California recently received a petition from a San Francisco constituent for the introduction of some mechanism "to penetrate the heavenly bodies." With the communication were a diagram and an explanation of the particular invention. The diagram was full of wheels, and it might have been inferred that the head of the petitioner was in a like condition. Anyway, Mr. Kahn was puzzled over the matter. He did not know what to do with the petition. He did not want to offend his constituent; neither could he offer such a bill in congress, for he was aware that it could not receive consideration.

A bright thought finally struck the San Franciscan. He took his pen and wrote: "I regret very much that I cannot comply with your request. Congress has no jurisdiction over heavenly bodies."

The senate was entertained with spirited repartee the other day, in which Mr. Beveridge of Indiana and Mr. Burton of Kansas were the principals, with Mr. Hoar of Massachusetts acting as a sort of final arbitrator.

The theme on which both Mr. Beveridge and Mr. Burton spoke with some heat was irrigation in general and the staying of floods in particular. They had divergent ideas, which were demonstrated in voluminous speaking. The Kansas man had a turn and advanced two distinct and separate propositions. "In one of his statements the senator is correct," remarked Mr. Beveridge; "in the other he is not correct." Mr. Burton hesitated a moment to take in the effect of the utterance. "I am glad to know I got one right," he said finally.

"So am I, and surprised," retorted Mr. Beveridge. This time Mr. Burton did not pause so long, but quick as a flash exclaimed: "The senator is always surprised if any one except himself is right."

At this point Senator Hoar rose and gazed benignly through his spectacles at the disputants. "The gentleman," said he in the calmest tones, enforcing the fact that the senators had been disputing for a very long time, "are talking about the impossibility of staying the floods and themselves giving the best possible illustration of the truth of it."

A fitter word round the chamber and the debate proceeded on more serious lines.

By way of illustrating the desirability of taking a conservative course in the conduct of public affairs Internal Revenue Commissioner Yorkes told this story of the experience of a man from Dyersville, Iowa.

"I can lick any man in Dyersville," the man announced one day on the main street of that village. "There was no response. 'I can lick any man in Dyersville' is then proclaimed."

"Still there was no reply to the challenge. Emboldened by the success of his bluff, the man shouted, 'I can lick any man in Tennessee.'"

"At that a long, lank mountaineer peered off his coat and wiped up the street with the boaster.

"Gentlemen," said the braggart as he brushed off his clothes, the trouble with me is that I scatter too darn much!"

Representative Fitzgerald of Brooklyn was recently showing two Norwegian constituents around the capitol and inquired if they would like to go with him to see the president.

"No," drawled one of them, somewhat hesitatingly. "No, but there is one man we would very much like to see."

"Who is that?" inquired the obliging representative from the City of Churches.

"We would like to see Senator Nelson," replied the visitors, and to the north end of the capitol the trio went forthwith, and there they had the satisfaction of being able to talk with some one in the language of their native land.

"Nelson," said a member who heard of the incident, "is the greatest Norwegian in the country. You must understand that being a Norwegian is a trade, same as being a Scotchman is, and Nelson is the master craftsman at it."

Martin Emerich, elected from Chicago to the Fifty-eighth congress, has been here to learn the ropes, being shown around by Representative McAndrews, also of Chicago, who is something of a wag and could not resist the temptation to have a little sport with the representative elect.

They were seated together in the house, and Mr. Emerich was much interested in the proceedings. Suddenly McAndrews jumped up and started for the door.

"Where are you going?" Emerich asked.

"Oh, I'm going out to the lobby."

"What for?"

"Why, there's an oil painting there I want to have taken down and shipped out home."

"Oil painting?" said Emerich. "How's that? How do you get an oil painting?"

"Why," McAndrews replied, "it's one of the little perquisites we have."

"Hold on," shouted Emerich excitedly. "Let me go too. I want one."

Under rather peculiar circumstances a tie of rapidly growing friendship and esteem has been formed between Representative Burkett of Nebraska and Thomas Nelson Page, the Kentucky novelist, now resident of Washington. It happened in this way:

A few weeks ago Mr. Burkett entered a Pullman car, being en route from Chicago, and sat down in the library thereof. Senator Simon of Oregon was there, engrossed in a book. Several other members of one or the other branch of congress were present and a gentleman unknown to the Nebraskan. Senator Simon finally ceased reading and engaged in the general conversation, which turned to books on the reconstruction period.

"Far and away the best production of that era in our history is 'Red Rock,'" observed Mr. Burkett. "It is a wonderful book. I was charmed with it."

Soon thereafter Mr. Burkett went back into another Pullman car, but was accosted by a porter with an inquiry from Senator Simon as to whether he would like to meet Mr. Thomas Nelson Page. The unknown man to Mr. Burkett was indeed the author of "Red Rock," who was clearly pleased with the young congressman's sincere though unconscious compliment, and the two apparently had a very congenial meeting.

When Secretary Moody was in "dry-dock" recently undergoing repairs made necessary by the accident at Annapolis, in which he was badly injured, he denied himself to callers and instructed his servant, a colored man who attended the front door, to say that he was not in.

One evening, so goes the story just told in the senate cloakroom, President Roosevelt desired to see the secretary of the navy and, knowing that he was confined to his bachelor apartments, went over to the K street residence to call.

Ringling the secretary's bell, the president was greeted with this statement of the colored man at the door:

"Mr. Moody am not in."

"But I just telephoned, and they said the secretary was in," exclaimed the president.

"Well, he am not in," repeated the servant.

"But he must be in," the president persisted.

The colloquy resulted in the conclusion that the servant did not know the distinguished caller, and Mr. Roosevelt said, with some impatience:

"I know he is in. Tell him the president wants to see him."

"The president oh what?" asked the suspicious servant.

"The president of the United States," replied Mr. Roosevelt.

"Oh," remarked the servant as he opened wide the door, "the secretary am here. Walk right in, sir."

"The servant was right, Mr. President," said Mr. Moody as he cordially welcomed the nation's chief executive. "I wasn't in a moment ago, but I am now."

WOMEN, WHY SUFFER?

Nervousness and Its Train of Terrible Evils Permanently Banished by

Paine's Celery Compound

Mrs. Clark Tells of Her Happy Rescue From Suffering After Failures of Physicians.

Nervous disorders and diseases are on the increase, and women are the chief sufferers. Digestion gives out, there are pains in the head, the tongue is coated, the muscles ache, there is constipation, heart palpitation, gloomy fears oppress continually, and sleep is broken and disturbed.

The only reliable remedy that medical science has given to humanity for the cure of nervousness, is Paine's Celery Compound, prescribed by eminent physicians with the happiest results. In critical cases, Paine's Celery Compound has saved life and restored health when all other medicines failed. Mrs. F. A. Clark, of Moscow, Idaho, writes as follows about her success with Paine's Celery Compound:

"While suffering terribly from nervous prostration, I was attended by several physicians, but their efforts brought no assuring results. I finally got so bad that it was impossible to sleep at night. My husband again wanted me to have a doctor, but I told him it was no use. He then went to our druggist who recommended Paine's Celery Compound. The first night I used the Compound I slept well and I continued to improve from day to day. I used in all eight bottles of Paine's Celery Compound and am perfectly cured. I cannot say enough in its favor."

BAR BANQUET—The Licking County Bar Banquet at the Hotel Warden on Friday evening promises to be an unusually enjoyable affair. The toasts and responses are to be a sort of oratorical go-as-you-please, each speaker choosing his own subject and being limited only as to time, five and ten minutes.

COUNTY FAIRS—County fairs no longer may be partially financed by the State, if the opinion or Attorney General Sheets is upheld by the Courts. That officer rendered an opinion a few days ago to the effect that the new law giving county agricultural societies an allowance, based on the number of inhabitants in the county was unconstitutional. He holds that the legislature has no power to impose on the tax payers the burden of donating money to corporations.

EUCRE PARTY—Tomorrow evening is the date of the great progressive eucré party by the Heluck Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The party will be given at Brennan's hall, and the proceeds will be used for the benefit of the Soldiers' Library at Manila. Tables will be set for 300 players and a nominal price of 25 cents will be charged. The event promises to be the biggest and one of the best affairs of the season.

First Methodist.

The evangelistic meetings now in progress at the First M. E. church have already resulted in much good. Twelve have been added to the membership at the last two meetings. Hereafter the services will be held in the main audience room as the rooms below are insufficient to accommodate the large number in attendance. The public is welcome to all of these meetings and those who are members of no church are urged to be present. The services begin promptly at 7.15.

CLAY LICK.

Mr. Worth the Madison township truant officer, was here Monday. While here he visited our school and gave the pupils and teacher a talk replete with lofty, inspiring sentiments, a talk that will be fruitful of good in time to come.

Mr. C. A. Johnson was pleasantly entertained Friday evening by Newark friends.

The Mt. Carmel meetings south of town are yet going on with results pleasing to all.

The Union Specialty Co. of Mulberry, O., rendered their entertaining drama at this place on last Friday evening. To say the least their audience was delighted with the program.

Mr. T. O. Hickey was among Newark friends Saturday.

All Clay Lickians unite in hoping line (projected) will pass through our village.

Rev. Mr. Shuman of Brownsville, conducted meeting Sunday at the M. P. Church southeast of town.

Dr. Dawson was here from Hanover last Friday.

Mr. Jake Cartnel has returned from Cottage Hill where he enjoyed a pleasant visit.

Nearly Forfeits His Life.

A runaway almost ending fatally, started a horrible ulcer on the leg of J. B. Orner, Franklin Grove, Ill. For four years it defied all doctors and all remedies. But Bucklen's Arnica Salve had no trouble to cure him. Equally good for Burns, Bruises, Skin Eruptions and Piles. 25c at F. D. Hall, Druggist.
